WASHINGTON, March 17.—To dispose of the long controversy as to whether Representative James T. McDermott, Democrat, of Illinois should be expelled from the House as the result of disclosures by the House lobby investigating committee last summer the House Judiciary Committee last s mittee recommended to-day that the House pass resolutions censuring Mr. McDer mott for "acts of grave impropriety un mott for "acts of grave impropriety un-becoming the distinguished position he holds," and condemning the conduct of officers and agents of the National Asso-ciation of Manufacturers for "lobbying." The report names J. Philip Bird, John Kirby, Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers: James A. Emery, its counsel, and M. M. Mulhall, as guilty of "improper and reprehensible lobby activities" and "systematic, secret and disreputable practices against the honor, dignity and integrity of the House of Representatives" of Representatives."

The McDermott case has been sleeping in the Judiciary Committee ever since the special lobby investigation committee made its report to the House last De-cember, a report in which it practically whitewashed all members of the House mentioned in the lobby investigation except Mr. McDermott.

way of an agreement.

The difference between the Government and the road on the question of time has narrowed down to a contention by the road that three years, with the possibility for extension, ought to be allowed, and by the Government that two and a half years are sufficient. It is regarded as highly improbable that the Government and the road finally will disagree over the matter of six months time for the trusteeship.

The disclosure of the status of the neotiations as far as the Attorney-Gen-geral is concerned caused considerable sur-prise here among a wide circle of per-sons who had sought to follow the negotiawere a great public convenience.

Gregory and Assistant Attorney-General Jesse Adkins, have been represented as those of the Attorney-General himself.

It is true, however, that the Attorney-General has for the most part left the conduct of the case in the hands of these associates and that associates and that the case, with the tentative agreement regarding it, has never been brought before him by his assistants for a final statement of his position. Thus Mr. McReynolds will feel perfectly free to grant the request of the New Haven or to uphold his assistants and deny the request if the evidence eems to justify that course.

HOT FIGHT AGAINST THEATRE TICKET BILL

Agencies Say Measure Would Put Them All Out of Business.

Attempt Made to Corner Market in Seats, Opponent of Bill Charges.

ALBANY, March 17.—Tyson & Co. and representatives of other theatre ticket selling agencies protested strenuously today to the Assembly Judiciary Committee against the passage of the bill of As-semblyman Francis Stoddart, Jr., of New York proposing to license ticket selling places, except box offices, at the rate of $250 for each theatre represented. Klaw & Erlanger favor the bill, but the Shuberts, said to be allied with the Tyson agency, oppose it. It was argued that the bill would put the agencies out of business, and its backers practically admitted that this was its intent.

Those for and against the bill pre-served order during the hearing, but showed fighting inclinations at times. M. L. Malavinsky of the Tyson agency admitted that his firm gets the first ten rows of orchestra seats at an increase of 20 and 25 cents a seat from the theatres and sells them at 50 cents each above the box office prices. Theatre tickets are a luxury, he said, and people who want them can well afford to pay an extra 50 cents for the choicest. Special Investigator Reports on Highway Department Conditions.

ALBANY, March 17.-Gov. Glynn through his counsel, John Godfrey Saxe, has asked James W. Osborne to accept a designation as a special Deputy Attorney-General to aid district attorneys throughout the State in finding indictments and prosecuting contractors whom evidence taken before Commissioner Osborne as Gov. Glynn's State graft hunter connects with road grafting. Recently Commissioner James W. Osborne filed with Gov. Glynn a report on his investigations of the State Highways Department, outlining the grafting he discovered in connection with the construction and repair of roads and indi-cating what contracts should be investi-gated by district attorneys throughout the State. Gov. Glynn referred this report to Attorney-General Carmody for his advice and Mr. Carmody wrote a letter to the Governor advising that Mr. Osborne be specially designated to secure indictments and sustain prosecutions in connection with the various district attorneys, as recommended in Mr. Osborne's report. Commissioner Osborne criticises the administration of the present Highways De-partment since its organization under former Governor Hughes, but is especially severe against the so-called Dix severe against the so-called Dix commis-sion, which consisted of State Engineer Bensel, Superintendent of Public Works Duncan W. Peck and Highway Superin-tendent C. Gordon Reel. He also scores the administration under the present Hishway Commissioner, John N. Car-lisle.

The executive of the contraction tive officers are political appointees. consequence is that if each of these officer is to be useful to the politician who caused the appointment he must employ as many persons as possible at the high-est possible wages. I find that the pay-rolls of the department are uselessly padded. I find that the employees of the department have been compelled to pay contributions to political parties. I find that the habit has prevailed for contractors to make large contributions to the State committees and to make large con-tributions to the local committees. The onsequence is that the contractor thus in effect by his influence instead of being a servant becomes a master. "One of the frightful evils of this system is that the civil service employee who thoroughly does his duty at once becomes persona non grata. He becomes at once offensive to the contractor and therefore offensive to his superiors. "I find that efficient engineers who from time to time have found fault with the material furnished by the contractors and Pave criticised the manner in which their work was done have been either trans-ferred or removed to remote districts from their families. I find that this evil existed under the three above named and has existed under the present administration."
